Level 5 Diploma in Administrative Assistant (139 Credits)

Administrative service managers coordinate and direct the many support services that allow organisations to operate efficiently.

Why does the qualification exist – To provide knowledge, strategies and abilities in Help Desk & Problem Solving Skills, Accounting, Business Management, Business Legal & Regulatory Environment and Personal Finance, all vital elements in Administrative occupations.

How does it fit into the larger programme – Office automation and organisational restructuring have led secretaries and administrative assistants to assume responsibilities once reserved for managerial and professional staff.

For who it was designed – The qualification is designed for learners who complete the Level 4 Certificate in Business Studies & Internet Technology or equivalence.

How it will benefit learners – Secretaries and administrative assistants perform a variety of administrative and clerical duties necessary to run an organisation efficiently. They serve as information and communication managers for an office, plan and schedule meetings and appointments; organise and maintain paper and electronic files; manage projects; conduct research; and disseminate information by using the telephone, mail services, Web sites, and email.

Units:

- Help Desk & Problem Solving Skills
- Accounting
- Business Management
- Business Legal & Regulatory Environment
- Personal Finance

Help Desk & Problem Solving Skills - Customer service excellence aims to bring professional, high-level concepts into common currency with front-line public services by offering a unique improvement tool to help those delivering public services put their customers at the core of what they do. Customer service managers ensure that the organisation they work for satisfies its customers' needs. They may work at various levels, from head office to the front end of the business. Work might include: helping to develop a customer service policy for an entire organisation; managing a team of customer services staff and handling face-to-face enquiries from customers.

Accounting - Accounting is the backbone of business. Ethical and professional accounting forms a clear financial image of a business, and allow managers to make informed decisions, keep investors abreast of developments in the business, and check business profitable. Accountancy (profession) or accounting (methodology) is the measurement, disclosure or provision of assurance about financial information that helps managers, investors, tax authorities and other decision makers make resource allocation decisions.

Business Management - A rapidly changing economy means more opportunities for those who have specific business management knowledge and skills. The concept of business management encompasses all aspects of owning and operating a business. This includes everything from business administration to marketing of the goods and services being offered.

Business Legal & Regulatory Environment – understanding business documents and legal requirements save time and this enable organisations to run smoothly. Government regulations change regularly hence it is important for organisations to keep up with the changes.

Personal Finance – knowledge in personal finance improves the wellbeing of citizens. Just as organisations look after their finances, we too, should look after our personal finance!

Level 5 Diploma in Secretarial Studies (145 Credits)

Secretaries use a variety of office equipment, such as fax machines, photocopiers, scanners, and videoconferencing and telephone systems. In addition, secretaries often use computers to do tasks previously handled by managers and professionals, such as: creating spreadsheets, composing correspondence, managing databases; and creating presentations, reports, and documents using desktop publishing software and digital graphics.

Why does the qualification exist – Many secretaries now provide training and orientation for new staff, conduct research on the Internet, operate and troubleshoot new office technologies. They also provide high-level administrative support for top executives of an organisation, hence Computer Keyboard Typing & WordProcessing Skills, Accounting, Business Legal Documents, Managerial Communication & Interpersonal Skills and Business Office skills knowledge is vital.

How does it fit into the larger programme – Generally, today's secretaries perform fewer clerical tasks, they handle more complex responsibilities such as reviewing incoming memos, submissions, and reports. They also prepare agendas and make arrangements for meetings of committees and executive boards, conduct research and prepare statistical reports.

For who it was designed – Those who complete the Level 4 Certificate in Business Studies & Internet Technology.

How it will benefit learners – Career opportunities include: Receptionists and information clerks; Communications equipment operators and Bookkeepers. This give learners a wide range of opportunities.

Units:

- Computer Keyboard, Typing & WordProcessing Skills
- Accounting
- Business Legal Documents
- Business Office Skills
- Managerial Communication & Interpersonal Skills

Computer Keyboard, Typing & WordProcessing Skills – everybody today be it a CEO or Manager, type their emails, hence having a certain minimum speed and knowing the keyboard layout helps.

Accounting - Accounting is the backbone of business. Ethical and professional accounting forms a clear financial image of a business, and allow managers to make informed decisions, keep investors abreast of developments in the business, and check business profitable. Accountancy (profession) or accounting (methodology) is the measurement, disclosure or provision of assurance about financial information that helps managers, investors, tax authorities and other decision makers make resource allocation decisions.

Business Legal Documents - To be competitive, it is important to be knowledgeable on a variety of essential business documents, legal forms and agreements used in households and corporate organisations.

Business Office Skills - business management skills need to be developed to their full potential if a manager, and therefore an organisation, is to be successful. The famous management guru Peter Drucker made the vital distinction between 'efficient' and 'effective' business skills. Performing an activity swiftly and economically is efficient, while doing the right thing well is effective. The wrong thing, however, is ineffective by definition. Good business management skills guide you towards the right goals, and achievement of those will be highly effective.

Managerial Communication & Interpersonal Skills – Managers spent most of their times solving staff and organisational problems, intermediating or addressing delegates. Only if proper communication channels are followed will Managers' responsibilities be effective.
